The city engineer was instructed to take up with property owners the improvement of Verdugo road. The city engineer was instructed to secure deed for a prolongation of Sycamore road beyond Verdugo road to Second street, the vote being as follows: Ayres, Lane, Weston, White, Ross, Anderson, Cook.

The street superintendent was instructed to safeguard the culvert on Sycamore road with railing and the lighting department to place a light at that point.

The question of improvement of Jackson street (repairs) was referred to the board of public works and the city engineer. The marshal and night watchman were each allowed a ten-day vacation at different times. The clerk was instructed to advertise for a motor cycle for the marshal. Adjourned to meet Thursday evening when plans for public building will be considered.

COUNTRY CLUB DANCE.

The last dance of the Country Club for this social season was given on Friday evening, with Dr. and Mrs. R. E. Chase as host and hostess of the occasion.

The evening was not so formal as many white had preceded it, but was none the less thoroughly enjoyed on that account. The club parlors were prettily and cool with their decorations of Shasta daisies, and the wide veranda, where punch was served, was most enticingly decorated with myriads of pansies.

The music and floors were excellent, and both old and young took full advantage of the fact.

During intermission a dainty plan was followed out, when partners for refreshments were found by matching the pansies which had been previously presented to the ladies and gentlemen.

Mrs. Chase was graciously assisted by the following young ladies of the club: Miss Nell and Miss Lydia Robb, Miss Eleanor and Miss May Richards, Miss Clara and Miss Bertha Peterson and Miss Anna Woodberry. In every detail the evening was a most complete success.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilmet Parcher celebrated the nineteenth anniversary of their marriage on Thursday of last week. They had for guests, to assist them on the happy occasion, Mr. and Mrs. Jackson, of Minnesota, at whose home the wedding took place nineteen years ago.

REAL ESTATE AND BUILDING

Some Railroad Gossip—Business Fair for the Season

Notwithstanding the fact that summer time is upon us, the demand for realty continues good. Indeed the weather conditions throughout the country during the last ten days could not fail to have the effect of strengthening the market for real estate in Southern California. The thermometer has been our best advertiser, with the mercury indicating a maximum temperature here of about 75 degrees as against the torrid heat of the centers of population in the states beyond the Rockies, no comment is necessary to draw the attention of the people of the country to a summer climate here that is unsurpassed.

Possibly the railroad talk that filters through the usual channels so persistently has something to do with maintaining the undoubted interest which outsiders continue to take in property in Glendale and vicinity. While it is impossible to make any definite announcements along this line yet, there seems to be little room for doubt that the powers that be in railroad matters are considering two or three propositions in the character of railroad extension herabouts. The extension of the independent electric line now in Verdugo canyon on up to Monte Vista is more than a possibility; it is rather a probability for the near future as the Crescenta people and the parties interested in the Monte Vista "Glorietta Heights" lands are constantly working to that end. There is much speculation as to the future of the old Verdugo Park property and interested parties are very hopeful as to the outcome. The most generally received version is to the effect that the same interests that control the electric railroad situation in this section, have a speculative eye upon it; and should this idea prove to be based upon facts, it would mean that the Pacific Electric will have a line into the canyon, either the present line already there connected with the main system on Brand boulevard, or the old Salt Lake steam road electrified. That this would lead to renewed development of East Side property, needs no diagram in explanation. At present a large proportion of visitors to the valley via the Pacific Electric, imagine that after they have made a round trip to Casa Verdugo and return to Los Angeles, they have seen Glendale. A trip into Verdugo Canyon would add largely to their knowledge as to the development and extent of this section.

Mr. A. S. Dodge has commenced work on the foundation of a fine residence on his Verdugo Road property south of Fourth street. It will probably cost $3,000.

Mr. C. D. Hillyard is building a one-story, five-room cottage at 135 Belmont street, to cost $1,400.

SALES BY TUPPER & PIERCE.

Five lots in their Eagle Rock tract to Arthur and Rachel Rice of Alliance, Ohio.

Three lots in the same tract to A. Bridgeford of Eagle Rock.

Three lots to P. S. McNutt of Glendale.

This firm also reports the following sales in their new Piedmont Park tract on First St.: Fred S. Evans, 1 lot for $1350. W. Burns, 1 lot $1100; Addie R. Knight, 1 lot $1350; Mr. Davis First street, 1 lot $1400. Beautiful houses to be built on three of these lots inside of four months.

The Fred Verdugo ranch of 197 acres on Verdugo road was sold to the Glendale-Verdugo Land Co. for $13,000. Tupper & Pierce were the agents for both parties.

Mr. LeDow of Louise street has sold his residence on Louise street to Mr. F. Verdugo who bought same for investment. Tupper & Pierce agents.

Mrs. Anna E. Mulloy sold her lot on Kenwood near First street to M. E. Plasterer, who is a brother-in-law of Dr. Geo. Cox of Eagle Rock. New owner will begin a beautiful bungalow at once. Tupper & Pierce agents.

The eight acres adjoining the Fourth street school will be subdivided this week into 32 large lots, prices ranging from $525 to $850. Tupper & Pierce owners and agents.

Mr. and Mrs. Dan Bruce, of Seattle, arrived in Glendale Sunday at the home of the former's parents, Mr. and home of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Duffet, at 1008 Chestnut street. Mrs. Bruce was formerly Miss Margaret Duffet, of the Burbank Stock Company, and her return was warmly welcomed by scores of friends and admirers.

SMOOTH SWINDLERS

A Gang of Italians Working Glendale and Tropic—Four of Them Arrested

As many as six and possibly more smooth swindlers have been working Glendale, Tropic and vicinity for the past week or more, their game being the sale of "linen" at lower than bed-rock prices, the stuff delivered proving to be a poor imitation of the real thing. The fact that they offered linen worth something like a dollar a yard to the housekeepers for thirty cents caught a large number of victims. Saturday last, Marshal Miller brought before Judge Whomes two members of the gang giving the names of Coligero Bruno and Giuseppe Riglo. Both were fined ten dollars apiece for peddling without a license, and the former, on complaint of Mrs. Bishop, of East Fourth street, was bound over to answer on a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses. When the case came up on Monday last, the complaining witness got mixed up on dates, and in the absence of satisfactory testimony the man was turned loose.

On Monday the marshal captured at Thorncroft Farm, almost in the act, Peter Ligia and another of the gang, and brought them before the recorder. While they were in the court room, Mrs. Green, of Thornycroft, telephoned Judge Whomes to hold the men, as they had swindled her out of $30. When the lady appeared in court she stated to the judge that she was only interested in the recovery of the money, and refused to swear to a complaint charging them with swindling. While there, the prisoners turned their pockets inside out and refunded to her the contents amounting to ten dollars, swearing upon their honor—or something equally stable—that they would reimburse her entirely when set at liberty. In the absence of any complaint, the men were merely held until they paid their fines for unlawful peddling. The judge reproved Mrs. Green severely for using his office for a collecting agency. Two more of the combine are supposed to have been working Tropic.

PARENT-TEACHER ASSOCIATION BENEFIT.

The ladies of the Parent-Teacher Association of the Sixth street school of Glendale met at the home of Mrs. Frank Grosvenor on Hawthorne street at 2 o'clock on Friday afternoon, June 30, where they were most gracefully entertained. The program was opened by an address delivered by Mrs. William Bairhyte, founder of the Maternity Hospital on Utah street, Los Angeles, which told how the hospital came to be started and the needs of some very pathetic cases. The second number was a reading by Mrs. Edith Hunchberger, rendered in her sweet and pleasing manner calling forth a hearty encore to which she graciously responded. Mrs. Marjorie Grass of Fifth street favored those present with several excellent musical selections. During the program and following it, many busy fingers were at work fashioning tiny garments for the use of the hospital. Dainty refreshments were then served; followed by a generous shower of silver and clothing given by those present for the benefit of the institution. There were forty-five guests present, all of whom upon leaving for their homes expressed themselves as having enjoyed a royal good time and declared that Mrs. Grosvenor's home would be remembered as a pleasant place to gather some time in the future.

The committee on arrangements to whom much of the success of the afternoon was due, was composed of Mrs. Wayne P. Snow, Mrs. L. A. Wood and Mrs. C. E. Hutchinson.

THE FOURTH.

The "safe and sane" idea seemed to prevail during the celebration of the nation's birthday this year. The sound of crackers was only heard at lone some intervals, and the small boys seemed to have dispensed himself at the seashore and elsewhere in a manner satisfactory to himself and his associates. The cities and towns within convenient reach of the sea shore were at least half depopulated. Glendale and neighboring places included. Locally there was no public celebration, but in a private way everybody celebrated. The day was ideal as far as the weather was concerned.

LOCAL AUTOISTS ASSEMBLE AT CARTER'S CAMP.

Sunday last, at Carter's Camp, Sierra Madre, a party of local autoists, all having Ford cars, assembled after a run to that pleasant resort. The party consisted of the occupants of cars belonging to W. A. Wilson, J. C. Lennox, M. L. Weaver, J. R. Bright, M. P. Harrison, Ed Lee and Mr. Hall, the latter of Los Angeles. Later a majority of the members of the party started at 4 o'clock a. m. and climbed the trail to the summit of Mt. Wilson.

The pastor has begun a new series of summer Sunday evening sermons on the general subject of Quaint Truths from Quaker Texts. The text for next Sunday evening will be "The bed is shorter than that a man can stretch himself on it; and the covering narrower than that he can wrap himself in it." In the morning his subject will be "The Christian Life and its incentives." A cordial welcome awaits the stranger.

Bishop-Grand-Girard

A quiet little wedding took place at high noon on Saturday, July 1st, in the presence of relatives and invited friends, when Miss E. Lyllian Grand-Girard, of Los Angeles, but who has resided for the past year at the Hotel Vert-Mont, was united in marriage to Mr. Edward Steele Bishop, a prosperous orange rancher of Cucamonga, Cal., Rev. S. L. Ward of the Presbyterian church, officiating.

The bride was simply attired in a neat traveling suit of blue, carrying a shower bouquet of pink roses. She was attended by her sister, Mrs. J. M. McCleary, of Los Angeles, her little niece, Miss Dorothy McCleary, acting as flower girl. Mr. and Mrs. Bishop left on the afternoon train for Corona Beach, and will be at home after September 1st at Cucamonga, where Mr. Bishop is completing a new home for his bride.

Misses Florence and Esther Burroughs from Grinnell, Iowa, are paying a visit to their grandparents, Dr. and Mrs. Thos. M. Hedges at 440 West Fifth street. They will remain until the autumn.

Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Pulliam and daughters left Sunday for Portland, Oregon, for a three weeks' visit to relatives. During his absence Mr. Pulliam anticipates a trip into the wilds of Oregon on a hunt for big game.

BOND ELECTION

School Bonds Carry—107 For— 23 Against

The bond election last Saturday was a tame affair. There are between six and seven hundred voters in the Glendale grammar school district and only one hundred and thirty of them considered it worth while to go to the trouble of expressing their wishes in regard to levying a bond issue amounting to forty thousand dollars. And yet the same voters will turn out in force at a general election to express their choice between the candidates of three or four parties, when to the great majority of them the candidates are personally unknown and the result will not appreciably affect the taxation of their property. Who was the freak philosopher who declared that when you threaten a man's pocketbook you shock his nervous system? Why the American voter is the most generous of citizens! The vote stood 107 for and 23 against.

THE WEATHER AND CROPS.

For the past fortnight this section has been favored with ideal weather conditions. There has been a high fog prevailing during a greater part of the time during the early morning hours, and the days have been delightfully cool. There are indications now of warmer weather, which is entirely seasonable at this date and will be needed for the satisfactory ripening of fruit and continued growth of crops.

Apricots are coming into market in small quantities from local orchards, and berries continue to be in fair supply, the price being higher than usual. Barley hay is bringing $17, and the grain and bran are proportionately high. Potatoes at three cents break the record for high price at this season. The local crops generally are not heavy, and fruit and produce promise to bring high prices throughout the season.

INSTALLATION OF OFFICERS OF GLENDALE LODGE, I. O. O. F.

On Saturday evening, July 1st, a special meeting was called for Glendale Lodge No. 338, at which the recently elected officers were installed. Following is a list of the officers installed: C. O. Pulliam, N.G.; M. E. Brown, V.G.; R. P. Foss, A.P.G.; E. J. Fish, recording secretary; E. L. Witt, financial secretary; O. S. Sampson, warden; F. D. Booth, conductor; J. M. Barker, chaplain; Geo. W. Brown, right support to N.G.; Harry Crutcher, left support to N.G.; P. Hedtrich, right support to V.G.; Wm. Pierce, left support to V.G.

To arrange for general holiday, Mr. Candee of Eagle Rock, Mr. Farley, Burbank; Robt. Taylor, Tropic; Harry Chase and Samuel Fliske, Glendale. Last year there were 14 carloads in attendance and there will no doubt be a larger crowd this time.

"THE COMING KINGDOM OF GOD."

Friends of Jesus and the general public are cordially invited to attend the free illustrated lectures in Odd Fellows hall on Lord's Day, July 9th, at 11 a. m. and 2:30 p. m. by Elder J. C. GLENDAL, CAL., JULY 7, 1911

We have the Scriptures for it, that "The Lord sends the rain upon the just and unjust," and Californians should not lay the flattering unction to their souls that the hot weather is missing them just on account of our superior virtue, there is still some wickedness here in spots.

President Taft has gone to his summer resort at Beverly, Mass., accompanied by "Aunt Della" Somebody, a famous pie and cake maker. Not until now had we envied Mr. Taft his position, but upon reflection we can see that there are compensations attaching to the position. The president is evidently in sympathy with Dean Swift or some other Irishman who said, "If I have the luxuries of life, I can get along without the necessaries."

GET THE BAND STAND.

The citizens of Monrovia have contributed $200 for the purpose of furnishing the public with free concerts during the summer. The citizens of Glendale have an opportunity of doing the same thing at the small expense of $50 for a band stand and there should be no delay about securing this small sum and giving the home band a chance to furnish the music which they are willing to give free.
The Improvement Association has pledged one-half of this sum.

San Fernando has started the machinery to work that will bring about a vote on the question of incorporating as a city of the sixth class. It is understood that "the interests" in that burg are opposed to the movement, which ought to be in itself a strong argument for incorporation.
We are informed that the opponents of the proposition are pointing to Glendale as a horrible example of the evils of taking this backward step! If there is any citizen of Glendale who regrets that this town incorporated, he ought to be caught and labeled for the real live curiosity that he is; he would make the fortune of a Venice concessionaire!

EFFECTUAL VACCINATION.

We find the following in a recent number of "Denver Municipal Facts": and commend it to the consideration of the anti-vaccinationists:

Smallpox Carried to Third Person.

On May 31 the health department found a case of smallpox in an invalid who has been confined to her bed for fifteen years. There were five other members of the family all of whom had been successfully vaccinated. The afflicted woman, owing to her physical condition had never been vaccinated.
She was visited only by the members of her own family. The father, who is a railroad employe, evidently came in to contact with some one who had the disease and brought it to his family in his clothing, the vaccination preventing him from contracting the disease. This case is cited simply to show this disease can be carried to the third person in clothing and infect anyone who is not protected by vaccination.

THE PRICE OF BREAD.

The San Diego Herald has an editorial on the price of bread which seems to show conclusively that the people who buy that staple are paying a great deal too much for it. A correspondent of the paper complains that he bought three loaves of bread which averaged twelve and a third ounces to the loaf, costing five cents.
The Herald calls attention to the fact that a pound loaf of bread in London, made from flour produced from the same American wheat fields, sells for two and a half cents! There is some difference in the wages paid to bakers between England and the United States, but the difference certainly does not account for the difference in price. And in London the law compels the baker to give full weight.
Here we do not ask the weight of a loaf, but take it on faith and frequently find that it consists of one part flour and two parts of condensed climate.

But as long as a loaf of bread is merely a "loaf of bread," to a large portion of the consumers, it is not surprising that the bakers put as few ounces as possible into one. There ought, however, to be a standard weight for a loaf.

DENVER MUNICIPAL FACTS.

We are in receipt of a copy of the "Denver Municipal Facts," a paper issued every week by the city of Denver, and furnished free to taxpayers upon request.

The publication is in magazine form and is illustrated on every one of its 16 pages. It is well edited and filled with interesting matter, principally relating to the municipality. It has no editorial department and no advertisement.

From its pages we glean the following in regard to Denver's government.
The entire administrative machinery of the city is centralized in the mayor, the departments all being subordinated to him and his appointments do not require any legislative approval. The city is divided into 16 wards and there is a board of aldermen consisting of one member from every ward. There is also a board of supervisors consisting of seven members. These with the mayor, clerk, auditor, treasurer and election commission constitute the elective officers. The members of all the other departments and commissions are appointed by the mayor. The tax levy is limited to fifteen mills, exclusive of the levy for state and school district taxes, for bonded indebtedness and special assessments for local improvements. The granting of franchises, which are limited to twenty years is dependent upon the votes of the electors. Amendments have recently been adopted providing for the initiative, referendum and recall.

SCHOOLS AND THE SCHOOL SYS- TEM. OUR BOND ISSUE.

Out of six hundred voters or more in the Glendale grammar school district, one hundred and seven have decided that an additional debt of forty thousand dollars shall be levied upon the taxable property of the district.
Certainly the five hundred or so of the electors who did not vote, are debarred by their own inaction from undue criticism. The active "kickers" should be confined to the twenty-three who voted in the negative. But probably after all, a large number of those who failed to go to the polls, were really undecided as to what was the best thing to do. They felt that the question of schools is constantly becoming more serious; that the average citizen is not familiar enough with the law or the "system," to justify his opposition to any expenditure which is recommended by those who have the local or larger control in their hands. They were willing therefore to assume the additional burden rather than take the responsibility of voting against it. Everybody is in favor of giving the young generation the greatest possible measure of opportunity for obtaining a good education, which is everywhere recognized as one of the essentials of good citizenship. We do believe, however, that outside of the professional educators and the small minority of citizens who have by reason of especially favorable circumstances profited in the learned professions and other avocations requiring special training, there is a general feeling that our educational system costs too much money; that it does not get results commensurate with the price that is paid. Our educators, full of the enthusiasm of their chosen profession, quite possibly lay too much stress upon the education given by the schools, overlooking too often the fact that the opportunities for education are not confined within the walls of the school room. In our own state and probably in every other state in the union, the educational department is a vast political machine with its headquarters at the state capital. Each successive administration has its own peculiar views so that in the course of a very few years the system undergoes a complete change but the changes are rarely in the interest of economy. The system is never simplified but becomes year by year more complex, with an ever increasing list of innovations. The county superintendent of schools has more political power than any other officer in the county. His "recommendations" have practically all the weight of authority, for in every subdivision of the territory under his jurisdiction, the local trustees naturally defer to his superior knowledge in educational matters. He interprets the law and practically is the law, and when he wishes his burden of responsibility lightened he appeals to the legislators, and they again, yielding to his superior knowledge, do his bidding. Can any one conceive of the legislature passing a law that is opposed by the educational authorities of the state? Possibly some day the legislators will not have to depend upon the educational authorities to prepare bills for them to pass, but that day is probably distant.

There is but one conclusion to be arrived at if these statements are true, as we believe them to be; the parents of children and taxpayers generally must pay more attention to the school question, and working through the trustees, do much more than they do toward the management of their own schools. It is not sufficient when a parent makes complaint to a teacher in the case of his child who has spent perhaps two or three years in school without mastering the rudiments of an education to be told that "the system" requires or prohibits certain things.
Only one system should be considered and that is the system of the pupil.
The local trustees should thoroughly familiarize themselves with the "system," so that they can make plain to inquiring parents, its merits and defects. Then if the latter predominates the citizen should see to it that the system be improved upon.

The voters of this school district have directed the trustees to expend the sum of forty thousand dollars for improved school facilities. The trustees will be tempted no doubt to exceed this amount. Quite probably they will not yield to the temptation. They should not do so. The law permits them practically to have levied whatever amount they see fit for school purposes. It is not difficult for them to run the cost of the new school buildings and grounds up to $45,000 or more and make up the deficit by extra tax next year upon the district.
But this should not be done. Probably they do not contemplate doing it. The bonds are issued, as set forth in the call, "For the purpose of raising money for purchasing school lots, for building one or more school buildings, for insuring the same, for supplying the same with furniture and necessary apparatus and for improving the grounds."

CORRESPONDENCE

The Woman Question—More Heavy Firing

A STEP BACKWARD (?)

Editor Glendale News.

Sir: Pressure of business hindered me from answering your correspondent, R. Gilhouse's interesting letter last week, and as I have already expressed my views on the woman suffrage question pretty freely and frequently in your columns in answer to other correspondents, there seem to be no good reasons why I should occupy your valuable space at any further great length in reiteration of same.

Nevertheless, I feel it due to Mr.
Gilhouse to answer such of his remarks as fall within my ability and are pertinent to the question under discussion.

Civilized human society is pretty much agreed that some form of government is necessary to make and administer the laws, represent one nation to another, and generally manage the business affairs of the whole.
In my view, the selection of persons to form such government should be the work of educated, patriotic men and women of mature age, not under thirty, not by any means drawn from one class. And in these days sufficient education to qualify my mature electors may be found among all classes. I have seen so many evil results from the exercise of the vote by the present unqualified male voter that I very much deprecate the entry of an immense number of equally uninformed and unqualified women voters. One would think the fearful example of San Francisco should warn men of the danger of mere majorities. Have we no instances in history where even only one strong man has proved right, and all the other people wrong? It is impossible for me to understand how we can expect wisdom in the multitude. A crowd is composed of individuals; and simply by adding them all together it is difficult to see how wisdom can come by mere numbers.

Mr. Gilhouse states the great cry of humanity today is "Justice." But I would suggest instead "Wisdom," which was the gift Solomon asked of the Almighty. As to the uneducated and immature, I should as soon think of taking their vote as I would that of a lot of children—it does just as much good.

I am aware that it might be a difficult task to draw a just and wise qualification for women voters, especially in view of the fact of universal male suffrage, and I need hardly say that I have only a faint idea as to just what such qualifications should be. But the matter should engage the earnest deliberations of the ablest and wisest men in the country; and I have no doubt they would, in due time, arrive at a solution satisfactory to all whose opinion should be considered.

Mr. Gilhouse states that corruption and graft can only come from the educated classes. Surely this is a mistake. The city, county and state bosses have certainly not, as a rule, been educated men. Does Mr. Gil-house mean to imply that education makes men vicious? Is it not rather makes men selfishness, the corrupt heart and want of patriotism which are at the root of political vice, and which education and religion, sincerely undertaken, correct and eradicate?

Mr. Gilhouse states that modern commerce is based on fraud; but a little investigation will show him that, on the contrary, it is based on the most rigid integrity. Credit systems enter so largely into all commercial relations at the present day that any deviation from minute fidelity swiftly puts the offender out of business, if not behind the bars. Nor can I agree that religion gives any countenance to craft or dishonest practices, and I shall be surprised if none of the ministers of Christian churches take up such a serious charge, unless, indeed, they consider it carries its own condemnation.

Into a discussion of the comparative virtues of men and women I do not care to enter. It is no part of my sentiment to disparage the virtues of women, as I am well acquainted with too many good women to make it possible for me to do so. But I am also equally well acquainted with just about as many good and wholehearted men. As to the mother's love for her children, I do not deny that it probably pertains, in its deeper sense, to woman alone. But I contend such a fact is due largely to a physical or even physiological condition, entirely unconnected with virtue.

In debating this great question of woman suffrage my sole aim is to arrive at a wise and just decision on which to base our vote at the coming election, in the best interest of the whole country—not for any one class or classes, not for the educated only, nor even for the women, who, it is true, are more particularly concerned in it.

But believing, as I do, that the great majority of the people are too much influenced by temporary sentiment, and do not really know what is good for them, I expect, if the proposed amendment carries, that the people of California, even the women themselves, will regret it in the future, as is already the case in some states which have adopted universal woman suffrage.

J. L. W.

Tropico, July 4th, 1911.

Editor GLENDAL NEWS:

Dear Sir: Your correspondent, J. L.
W. told us a story in last week's NEWS, probably to give me perfect information. However he could have saved himself a lot of copying and you, Mr. Editor, a lot of typesetting and some printer's ink by just referring to the book of Esther. He considers that story a strange example of justice and womanly worthiness in connection with woman suffrage, because it is impossible for his mind to look beyond his conservative and reactionary horizon of 20th century civilization. Now let us see: Esther was a (designing young?) Jewess, and as such the laws of Moses and the customs of the Jews were to her mind better and higher, therefore sacred, than those of the Persians, among whom she with tens of thousands of other Jews were forced to live in captivity. The law of the Persians punished with disgrace and death disobedience to the king, and all women were slaves, as they are even to day in almost all Oriental countries. Queen Vashti was punished according to the Persian law and Esther chosen queen.
She undoubtedly discussed with Ahaserus the fate of Vashti in the privacy of the kindly home and Esther showing the king the injustice and wrong perpetrated on the Persian women and picturing to him the more just status of the women of Israel, convinced him of the justice of her argument and by proclaiming her his equal he proved himself to be made of the right material—a progressive insurgent, if you please. He was no standpatter, reactionary or conservative. Now the virtue of Esther. John Lacking Wisdom pictures her to us a bloodthirsty cruel tigress. Let us see. The Mosaic law said: "An eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth." That was sacred to Esther. It was her religion.
In chapter 3 of the book of Esther we read of a verdict sent into all the lands of the king, sealed with the king's seal, by which on the 13th day of the twelfth month all Jews in Persia were to be exterminated, young and old, women and children. When Esther convinced the king of the injustice of that edict and giving in her power to satisfy the Jews, she simply let the law take its course and there was a Persian killed for every Jew condemned.

No, Mr. Editor, J. L. W. does not want to discuss the justice of women's suffrage, but he would like to discuss the justice of universal suffrage and I am wondering if he has any, and what his objections to universal suffrage are and how he would distribute the right of suffrage in these glorious U. S. A. just without making it universal. Let every man boost for it vote for it, and by so doing get it and justice.

ROYAL ARCH DENIES REPORT

The Royal Arch denies having circulated the vituperative pamphlet against woman suffrage which has been sent to all parts of the state, and which has aroused so much editorial and general indignation. The following letter appears in the California Outlook of June 24th:

"Gentlemen:
In your issue of June 3, 1911, you devote a portion of your valuable space to an item regarding woman suffrage; and you make the charge that the Knights of the Royal Arch are fighting it and have put a woman speaker in the field to oppose the cause.

Permit me to inform you that your conclusions are erroneous. This organization has taken absolutely no action regarding this question and is not going to. Many of our members are in favor of it and many oppose it.
However, it is worthy your attention that those who oppose it do not do so out of a fear of the consequences to the liquor business. We long ago made a thorough investigation of the states where woman suffrage has been tried and we learn that the liquor business has NOT been injured the least by the woman's vote. The statement of the Prohibitionists, "Woman suffrage will kill the liquor business," seems to be founded on theory only. All the facts point to the contrary. Mabel Craft Deering, a well-informed suffrage worker who is contributing to the Pacific Graphic, a magazine receiving its support from the Anti-Saloon league, says that in states where women vote, the women have taken no interest in the liquor question more than have the men.

Therefore, while we are absolutely indifferent as to the outcome of the

CHAPTER XIII

BREED came out and called Rollins into the library, where Kelvin was already seated. The old man was almost childish in his admiration of his two lieutenants, as he chose to call them.

"I have been waiting for years for this," said he, rubbing his clawlike hands together as he looked from the one to the other of them. "In all my years of money making my only worry was that when the time came I might not find capable men through which to wield the ultimate power. I craved. Like most worry, it was wasted. You two young men have done wonderful work, but it has only just begun."

"Precisely my errand," said Rollins, with a rather wan smile. "The work is only just begun, and at the outset I have found so much opposition that I ran down here for moral support."

"You've come to the right place," laughed Kelvin. "At Forest Lakes we are dealing almost exclusively in moral support."

"Backed by the dead weight of more cash than was ever in one man's control since time began," chuckled Breed. "What are your difficulties, Mr. Rollins?"

"Well," said Rollins, "I have practically put the United Steel corporation out of business as a monopoly. Here is a communication I had from MacDougal. If ever a big man made a mistake in a letter MacDougal is the man, and here is this mistake. And with huge contempt he tossed down a three page missive which Kelvin read, with a smile.

"The answer," went on Rollins, "is open heart steel and the control of transportation. I have put them in direct competition with our own plants, and they are underbidding us. I intend to let them have some large contracts at a price we cannot touch. Now I begin to have dreams."

"I don't see any difficulty in that," laughed Kelvin. "A man doesn't dream many dreams in the face of failure. It's success that brings dreams. I have dreams of my own. I have done a little thinking about these dreams of late."

"I know you have," interposed Rollins. "Somebody has been doing a great deal of thinking around here. At first I thought it was Mr. Breed, but now I know that he hires his thinking."

Breed himself was the first to acknowledge by a chuckle the truth of this remark.

"I used to have to do it myself when I was poor," he admitted, "but that is not the way to success. You can't get rich that way any more than you can by performing all your own manual labor. My success is built on an unusual ability to discover men who can think for me. But you two go ahead and exchange your dreams; I am interested."

"I have no objection to telling mine," said Kelvin. "I want to do a little trust busting."

"I've tried it, and that's why I'm here," laughed Rollins. "Trust busting, with absolute control of every mile of railroad in the United States, is the easiest thing in the world. Raymer, Speed, Melton, Sears & Co. and all the others have been making life a burden to me. Strangely enough, they don't want to be drawn and quartered."

"I hate them, every one," suddenly snapped Breed. "A dozen times they tried to gobble me up in the early days. I have their photographs, too, waiting to be checked off."

"We'll let you check them off by and by," replied Rollins. "They are crippled now, but it was a task. Even with all my experience I didn't appreciate the full extent of the private car graft. It was a colossal trick, serving merely as a disguise for excessive and absurd rebates."

"Well, you stopped it," Kelvin conceded him.

"Yes, I stopped it," admitted Rollins, with a sigh, "and the next thing that happened I had all the big packers on my neck."

"The only way to forget the attacks of the packers," suggested Kelvin, "is to attack the other monopolies. Hammering them the first stroke."

"Good!" said Rollins, with relief. "It's a pleasure to find that we want the same thing without argument. It's simple enough. I've merely to establish my flat freight rate without undue reduction for quantity and without rebate, thus giving the small shipper an equal chance with the big one. The interstate commerce law may then go out of commission, for we will do the same work which it was designed to do, but in which it failed."

Rollins and Breed exchanged glances. "Don't misunderstand me," went on Rollins. "I consider the trusts as much a product of natural law as the attraction of gravitation, but where they attain to stupor, it is merely on the basis of their own stupidity. The system which brought them into existence, the greatest abuse of which, the mohopolies have been guilty is in transportation. Probably more than half of the freight carried is shipped by large corporations, nearly every ton of it being subject to a rebate or a drawback of some sort, and this drain on the railroads, amounting to millions every year, must be made up by the small shippers. I can lower the present ostensible cost of transportation on a flat rate basis and make more money for our stockholders."

Breed looked at Kelvin inquiringly. Phillip nodded his head. "I have been over some of the figures," said Breed. "The aggregate is appalling, but I am afraid that, after all, we shall be compelled to allow certain concessions in certain places."

Rollins turned slightly pale. "I have been waiting for that remark," he said, "but I want you to understand that there will be no concession of any sort. One exception I grant you, and that is the secret rebate on Mr. Breed's bread, wheat and cereal shipments, which was agreed upon in the first place; other than that, absolutely none. I propose to manage these united railroads unhampered or I propose to create such a stench that public opinion will revolt at the next stockholders' meeting and you will be utterly unable to secure proxies. Without proxies you have no railroad domination."

Again Breed and Kelvin exchanged glances. Again Phillip nodded his head. "You are quite right in your contention, Mr. Rollins," admitted Kelvin. "But you misunderstand us. We don't intend to interfere with your absolute control. We do hope, however, to have you see that our way of planning is right. Until then we shall not even bother you with advice. In the meantime promulgate your flat rate sheet and we'll stand behind you."

Rollins studied the matter over for some time. "Very well," said he. "I think that I shall remain at Forest Lakes for a month or so. I had just as lief have the avalanche of protests come to me here as in New York. I understand by this that you will neither promise nor attempt to make any concessions to these people."

"Absolutely none," declared Kelvin. "We'll give you our bond on that."

"Your word is enough at present," replied Rollins dryly. "If you will stick to the letter of that I am perfectly satisfied."

After Rollins had left the room Kelvin turned inquiringly to Breed. "Will he come in?" he asked anxiously. "When the time is ripe, yes," asserted Breed confidently. "It is in his blood, and when the time comes he'll listen."

That evening Rollins met Elsie White coming down the kitchen steps and joined her. She was so frank, so wholesome, that he always had an indefinable impression of being the better for having talked with her, even though nothing of moment had been said.

"How the country agrees with you!" he observed as he joined her. "You were looking rather pale when I first saw you here, but you have found some marvelous rouge among these trees."

"I like it very much," she admitted, turning his compliment with a smile. "I have already grown to have a certain amount of supercilious pity for city dwellers."

"They really need it," he agreed, with a laugh, "and to prove that I am sincere in that remark I am going to stop with you for a month or so."

"Good!" she exclaimed. "More people to enjoy Forest Lakes is all that we need."

"Do they never have any visitors," Rollins inquired, "week end parties and the like?"

"Never," she replied. "For festivities of that sort they go down occasionally to Mr. Breed's other place in Virginia, but Mr. Breed is very jealous of having any social life whatever here."

Rollins strolled by her side until they reached the cottage, where the garrulous Mrs. White met them at the door.

Mrs. White was delighted to be introduced to Mr. Rollins. "Elsie has told me all about what a fine man you are, and fine men are scarce enough any place. Are you going to stay long this time?"

"He promises us a month at least, mother."

"That's nice," asserted Mrs. White. "It's fine to have a lot of good looking men around. My goodness! I tell Elsie she never will have a chance to get married if she stays here."

Rollins was so thankful to Elsie that she laughed from sheer amusement and gave him a chance to join her. His amusement and also his repressed embarrassment were heightened when, after Elsie had invited him to sit on the vine clad little front stoop, Mrs. White suddenly and conspicuously absent herself. The two were silent for a time, when they heard approaching voices.

"You had better come in with us," said the voice of Blagg from just beyond the corner of the house. "The organization now numbers more than a quarter of a million, all of the down-trodden, sworn to serve the best interests of the poor."

"But if they are all poor people what can they do to help themselves?" objected the voice of Ben White.

"Rise up and overwhelm the existing condition of things by the mere weight of numbers," responded Blagg quickly and tensely. "Moreover, the organization is not so poor as you might think. It has quite a snug little sum in its own treasury, and, besides that, I know where there is $1,500,000,000 in cash that we can seize upon the moment we rise. Look here, Mr. White, I want to explain to you the system of our organization."

By the sound of the voices they were slowly walking away. Elsie turned to Rollins with a troubled frown. "I don't like this Mr. Blagg," she declared. "He talks nearly every evening with father about some secret society he wishes him to join, and I am afraid."

Rollins laughed easily. "These socialistic organizations never do anything," he told her.

He thought no more of the matter just then, but he did think more and more frequently of Elsie White as the days wore on. He knew that he had lost caste with Mrs. Bensenaler the first time she saw him with Lillian's maid, but he did not care to hold caste with Mrs. Bensenaler. The Rollins men folk had held it as their right to marry whom they chose, and he began a deliberate courtship of Elsie White.

He avoided Lillian Breed from fastidious choice, but he spent much time in his spare hours with Kelvin and young Bensenaler.

One drowsy night he had dropped to sleep upon a bench on the porch in the shadow of a climbing rosebush. He was awakened by the scrape of chairs and became conscious of low and tense voices quite near him.

"You, too, could love as I love," said the voice of Blagg, trembling with repressed intensity, "could love with seething brain, with pounding pulses, with a heart the throbs of which would hurt and hurt and hurt!"

"You are almost poetical in your anatomy of the emotions," drawled the contemptuous voice of Lillian Breed. "I had no idea that the love of money could affect one in that precise way."

"You don't mean that, sir," he protested angrily. "You know that if you had not a dollar I would still have for you this hunger that starves me, this thirst that parches me, this flame that burns me, this agony that makes me cry out in the night."

"You ought not to encourage yourself in that attitude," she said, with less contempt. "You are making a breach in the confidence that is placed in you here."

"I would make a breach in the wall of heaven," he retorted passionately. "I would break and destroy it utterly, would grind it to atoms, would scatter its dust to the four winds, if by that I might win you. And you could love, I tell you, as madly as I do."

"Yes," she admitted slowly, "but not you."

"I know," he responded bitterly, "but you are wasting your affections. Kelvin cares for no one but himself."

"Who told you to speak his name? Don't make me hate you."

"I'd rather make than indifference," he declared, "so hate me, for hate at least is an emotion. As for Kelvin, I will not be silent about him, for I think you're mistaken about even yourself. It is not Kelvin to whom you are attracted, but the force he represents. The power to achieve, that is what you worship, but in your dreams of the power he might acquire you are blind to other possibilities. I, too, can give you power. Join with me and future historians will acclaim us as the great liberators of the chained and manacled American public."

"Splendid!" she exclaimed, laughing lightly. "I didn't even know they needed liberation."

"You have much to learn," he returned. "Do you know that the army of the unemployed now numbers nearly a million? Do you know that there is an organization among them and their more fortunate brothers, aggregating a quarter of a million, which is sworn to change the existing order of things so that every man shall have an equal opportunity? Listen a moment. I could gain control of this organization and increase it to 10,000,000 if I had your opportunities to command a billion and a half dollars of cash."

"Of what are you talking?" Her tone now was a frightened one.

"The possibilities of a new and glorious order of things, a new social system, a new form of government which shall guarantee to every man an equal distribution of earning capacity. I need to rally 10,000,000 men to the new cause. It will cost $150 per man. That amounts to a billion and a half of dollars. You have, let us say, influential friends who have plenty of money—would cash. Join me, help me to raise this money; help me to carry through to its glorious conclusion this enormous benefit to humanity, and no king and queen will have a firmer and a more honored place in history than we shall have."

"It is a dream of folly," she protested. "You would expend all this enormous amount of money if you had it in promoting only a new reign of terror."

"By no means," he declared and laughed. "My 10,000,000 men would need but to show their teeth and it would all be over. There need not be a blow struck."

"You talk in perfectly silly, silly, silly ways," she declared.

"I don't like this Mr. Blagg," she declared. "He talks nearly every evening with father about some secret society he wishes him to join, and I am afraid."

Rollins laughed easily. "These socialistic organizations never do anything," he told her.

He thought no more of the matter just then, but he did think more and more frequently of Elsie White as the days wore on. "Yes," she admitted slowly, "but not you."

"I know," he responded bitterly, "but you are wasting your affections. Kelvin cares for no one but himself."

"Who told you to speak his name? Don't make me hate you."

The voice of Mrs. Bensenaler broke in upon them, peremptorily calling upon Lillian for some music.

"Coming," replied Lillian. She turned to Blagg. "I must go in now," she said to him. "Your talk is perfectly silly, but it is amusing, too. I find it quite curious—and interesting."

She hurried into the house, leaving Blagg alone on the porch. As soon as she had gone Blagg stepped down into the grounds and disappeared. Rollins sat quite still and thought for a long, long time.

A Clever Crew. As to a crew's ability to talk, said a naturalist, some will and others will never learn. The first of the four birds I have had recently was a wonderful talker. Unlike the parrot, his conversation seemed intelligent rather than simply imitative. For instance, if I said to him, "Hello, Jack!" he would answer, "Hello!" and not put on the "Jack," as so many parrots do when one says, "Hello, Polly!"

But he could imitate me also. He found that when any one called and said, "Hello, Wood!" my reply was a low "Hello!" He tried in every way to imitate that low tone of mine and finally succeeded. He would go over to his water trough and with his head in the air would cry, "Hello, Wood!" Then down would go his head in the trough, and out would come the "Hello!" just like mine.—Washington Star.

STATE UNIVERSITY.

Over a Thousand New Specimens Added to the University Zoological Museum.

Headless of the vacation season, the staff at the museum of vertebrate zoology is engaged in the classification and cataloging of some 1500 newly captured specimens of California mammals. This large collection has been brought in through the labors in the field, extending over a period of three months, of Mr. H. S. Swarth, of the regular staff, and two assistants, W. L. Chandler and H. A. Carr. From March 5th to June 6th they have been conducting zoological explorations in the San Joaquin valley to ascertain the nature of the vertebrate fauna of the region. Work was begun at Tracy and prosecuted on a chain of localities south as far as Bakersfield and thence westward to Santa Margarita in San Luis Obispo county. At each center of activity a base station would be adopted, whence lines of traps, large and small, would be run out in various directions across the country to the number of two hundred a night. Bait would be rolled oats, and the animals captured gave an index of the relative numbers of each species of mammals present in the locality. It turns out that most of the species were nocturnal in habits, only the squirrels, chipmunks and rabbits being diurnal. Mr. Swarth reports the following taken at Tipton, Tulare county, as a typical night's catch: 3 four-toed kangaroo rats; 12 five-toed kangaroo rats; 1 long-tailed harvest mouse; 4 long-legged pocket mice; 5 Fresno pocket gophers; 1 house mouse. The investigators kept record of the food, economic bearing, and habits of each species, resulting in considerable additions to scientific knowledge of the distribution and habits of the mammals, birds and reptiles in the San Joaquin district. Almost 1500 specimens were brought back to Berkeley, and are now being classified in the museum.

Anthropological Museum to be Opened to Public.

The anthropological museum of the university, now situated at the Affiliated Colleges in San Francisco, is announced to be shortly open to public inspection. This museum ranks in size and quality of content with the three or four largest in the country. It is certainly the greatest collection west of Chicago and compares favorably with the Smithsonian Institution in Washington. The museum was founded and presented to the university by Mrs. Phoebe A. Hearst some ten years ago and the increasing collections since that time have been in large part by her gift. The collection includes anthropological specimens, antiquities, and works of art from Egypt, Greece, Rome, Peru, North America, the Pacific Islands, and Asia. The actual cost has been nearly a million dollars, while the present value, owing to the uniqueness of many objects, is estimated to be from three to five times as great. Here may be seen such specimens as the idols of the ancient Incas of Peru; the head of a mummy of a Peruvian chief, wearing a straw hat with a silver band and parrot feathers; vast collections from the California Indians stored in one great room; totem poles; the garb worn by the women of the Blackfoot Indians; an Egyptian hieroglyph showing a king and his wife in curious dress; relics of Greek and Roman Art. The collection has been for many years housed at the Affiliated Colleges and will remain there until such time as the large museum building contemplated in the Hearst-Benard plan can be erected on the university campus in Berkeley. During the past year almost a thousand grammar school children and many from various high schools visited the museum under an arrangement with the San Francisco Board of Education. But up to the present the collections have been accessible only to a limited number of general visitors for a few hours each week. Under the new arrangements for the early autumn the building, provided with cases and equipment for display, will be free and open to the public on Sundays and holidays as well as during the week.

NOTICE OF STREET WORK

Public notice is hereby given, that the Board of Trustees of the City of Glendale, on the 19th day of June, 1911, did, at its meeting on said day, adopt a Resolution of Intention, No. 401, to order the following street work to be done, to-wit:

First: That that portion of the roadway of

from the East line of Brand Boulevard to a point 160 feet East from the East line of Jackson Street, including all intersections of streets and alleys, be graded and oiled in accordance with the plans and profile on file in the office of the City Engineer, and Specifications for the grading and oiling of streets on file in the office of the City Clerk of the City of Glendale, said Specifications being numbered 10, excepting, however, that all oil applied as called for under afore-described Specifications No. 10 shall be applied by a machine which must be of such construction that the oil will be spread uniformly over the surface of the road in any quantity per application from one-eighth (1/8) of a gallon per square yard to one (1) gallon per square yard. The oil must be spread or forced upon the surface of the road in such a manner as to immediately cover every particle of surface when applying a quantity of oil as small as one-eighth (1/8) of a gallon per square yard. The oil above the nozzle must be maintained at a uniform pressure during the application of the entire tank of oil, and such pressure shall not be less than thirty (30) pounds per square inch. The machine shall be provided with a transverse distributing cylinder of such length that it will spread oil over a width of road of eight (8) feet in each course, in order to prevent overlapping or necessity for "bucketing" or patching with oil as is required with rollers of less width.

Second: That a cement curb be constructed along the lines of the roadway of said First Street from the East line of Brand Boulevard to a point 150 feet East from the East line of Jackson Street (excepting along such portions of the lines of said roadway upon which a cement curb has already been constructed on the official line and grade), in accordance with the Specifications for the construction of cement curbs on file in the office of the City Clerk of the City of Glendale, said Specifications being numbered 2. Said curbs shall be curved on the specified radius to meet the curb lines of all intersecting streets as tangents.

Third: That a cement sidewalk five (5) feet in width be constructed along each side of said First Street from the East line of Brand Boulevard to a point 150 feet East from the East line of Jackson Street (excepting such portions of said First Street between said points along which a cement sidewalk four feet or more in width has already been constructed to the official line and grade), said sidewalk to be constructed according to Specifications for the construction of cement sidewalks on file in the office of the City Clerk of the City of Glendale, said Specifications being numbered 1.

Fourth: That culverts shall be constructed at the intersections on First Street and Maryland Avenue, First Street and Louise Street, First Street and Kenwood Street, and First Street and Jackson Street, in accordance with the Special Plans and Specifications for the construction of said culverts on file in the office of the City Clerk of the City of Glendale, which Special Plans and Specifications were duly adopted for said work by Resolution No. 399 by the Board of Trustees of said City.

SEC. 2. That the Board of Trustees of the City of Glendale hereby finds upon estimates directed to be furnished and furnished by the City Engineer that the total cost of said improvement will be greater than fifty cents per front foot along each line of said street, including the cost of intersections, and it is hereby determined, in pursuance of an Act of the Legislature of the State of California, approved February 27, 1893, as amended by an act of the Legislature of the State of California, amending said last named Act, which amending act became a law March 2, 1899, that bonds shall be issued to represent the cost of said improvements. Said bonds shall be serial, extending over a period of ten years, and an even proportion of the principal sum of such bonds shall be payable annually, by coupon, on the second day of January of each year after their date, until the whole are paid, and said bonds shall bear interest at the rate of seven (7) per cent per annum on all sums unpaid, payable semi-annually, by coupon, on the second day of January and July of each year.

Reference is hereby made to said Resolution No. 401 for further particulars of said work.

E. M. LYNCH, Street Superintendent of the City of Glendale.

A MESSAGE OF UNUSUAL SAVINGS

"Stocks Must Go Lower"

THAT'S the ultimatum of the management—that's the message from headquarters—a message carrying tidings of unusual values to every home in and about Los Angeles.

—Despite the fact that returns during the past few weeks have been truly phenomenal, and far in advance of our expectations, a thorough canvass of all departments reveals stocks far in excess of the desired average.

—And the most surprising discovery was the exceptional completeness of sizes, styles, colors, etc.

—In other words, though we have just completed five weeks of a most successful Stock Reduction, there is no noticeable depletion of desirable numbers and the merchandise remaining still offers the cream of extraordinary quality at prices unusually far reduced.

—Hence the message: "STOCKS MUST GO LOWER."—and stocks WILL go lower—for merchandise has been marked at prices that will admit of no lull in the bargain-interest until stocks have reached their wanted level.

Coulter's STOCK REDUCING SALE has been an unusual event—most unique in some respects—and indeed deserving of the unabated interest that has already been manifested.

—One of the "different" things that has characterized this event was the promise:

"Absolutely everything in our store will bear unusual reductions throughout this sale, with the single exception of those manufactured lines which we are, by contract, forbidden from underpricing."

—and we'll reiterate that promise again: "Everything, absolutely everything, excepting contract goods, at greatly reduced prices."

Our Out-of-town Friends—will find this an excellent opportunity to pay Los Angeles a visit and save expenses by the savings made possible at Coulter's Stock Reducing Sale.

We prepay all charges on purchases amounting to $3 or more within fifty miles; or on purchases of $5 or more within one hundred miles of Los Angeles by railroad mileage.
